

What Our Clients Say about River City Communications

- “River City Communications developed an effective political and communications program that improved our ability to influence the outcome of elections and public policy,” said Bill Pauli, Past President of the California Farm Bureau Federation. “California’s family farmers are pleased to have River City Communications on its farm team.”
- “River City Communications’ role in organizing the California Restaurant Association’s annual public affairs conference in Washington, D.C. was critical to establishing lasting relationships with key members of Congress and the California Congressional Delegation,” said Jot Condie, President of the California Restaurant Association. “Any trade association interested in enhancing their relationships with key Members of Congress, would certainly benefit from having River City Communications manage their federal program.”
- “River City Communications developed an aggressive television and direct mail program that influenced public opinion and defeated Measure Q,” said Jackie Crabb, Executive Director of the San Luis Obispo County Farm Bureau. “As a result, we protected local jobs, the environment and agriculture’s role in producing life-saving medicines.”
- “River City Communications knows what it takes to develop an aggressive and effective grass-roots and coalition programs,” said Ted Costa, CEO of Peoples’ Advocate. “If you need community support to protect your interests, you want River City Communications leading the charge.”
- “As my chief of staff and political advisor, Marko Mlikotin helped me navigate the diverse world of Washington politics,” said Congressman Doug Ose. “Whether your interests are in California or Washington, D.C. you will be well served by River City Communications.”